DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE.

Not Only a Moral but a Physical Existence in Our Bodies.

The morally good or bad within us has been ably set forth in the story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, but did it ever occur to you that there was a physical application of this remarkable story, more real and terrible than the contrasts of moral attributes?

The moral perfection of Dr Jekyll is represented in our physical systems by sound, strong and vigorous health—the skulking, murderous immorality of Mr Hyde has its prototype in the weakness or disease of our vital organs, which often exist within us, and which may, at any moment rise, overcome our strong health, and hold us in its deadly grasp.

How many diseases there are which thus grapple us before we are aware of our peril! We often neglect a little weakness or exhaustion, nervousness, tired brain, sleepless nights, from which we wake tired and unrefreshed, weary, languid feeling, headache, confusion of mind, dulness, loss of memory, strange sensations—which mean insanity. Cold feet and limbs, numbness, trembling, prickling sensation, extreme weariness of limbs—mean Paralysis. Poor blood, low vitality, pale complexion and great weakness—mean consumption. We often disregard the weakness of nervous debility, malaria, the disorder of stomach, liver or kidneys, until fatal disease fastens upon us.

You neglect these symptoms at your peril for they may run into incurable disease.

You should use immediately that wonderful remedy, Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, the pure vegetable medicine, which restores vigor to the tired brain, strength to the weak and shattered nerves, vitality and health to the exhausted body, and thus prevent fatal results. Druggists, $1 00.

"I had poor health for several years. Have been under the treatment of many doctors, but they did me no good. The more medicine I took, the weaker I grew. I was so bad at last I could not eat or sleep, and had a cough that almost racked me to pieces. I had pains in my chest which made breathing very difficult. As my father, brother and sister had died with consumption, I thought my time had come. With much pleasure and gratitude I can now say that I have been entirely cured of my troubles by Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. My appetite is excellent, food digests easily, sleep is refreshing, and altogether I feel restored to health once more. I most earnestly recommend Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to all who are afflicted with obstinate chronic, nervous or painful diseases. I have recommended it to many sufferers, and am pleased to say that it has given general satisfaction.

Timber Lands in Colorado Burning.

Great Damage to the Forests Expected.

NEW CARSLE, Col., Sept. 19. A great fire is raging in the mountain timber, a few miles from here. The flames are sweeping everything before them and it looks as though immense damage will be done to the forests.

From all appearances it will take the great reservation set aside for use as a National Park by the President's proclamation. It is covered with tall timber and is, without doubt, the most stately and magnificent of the National Parks in Western Colorado. The entire side seems to be in flames.

GRAND ARMY REUNION.

The Day Opens with Beautiful Autumn Weather.

The Nation's Capital in Gorgeous Costume in Honor of the Event.

The Streets Filled with Veterans and Sight-Seers.

Trains Filled with Comrades Continue to Arrive.

The Camp of Veterans a Scene of Great Activity.

The Feature of the First Day's Proceedings.

An Ardent and Feeling Despatch from President Harrison.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19. To-day the Grand Army of the Republic begins the first day of a week's reunion in the city of Washington. All through last night trains arrived loaded with comrades and their wives and sons and daughters. Besides there were very many sight seers not connected with the G. A. R., attracted by the spectacular display expected to be seen during the week. All of the people were taken care of as they arrived by members of the Reception Committee or numerous bodies of bright High School boys, who were detailed for the service. Vast barracks are erected in Garfield Park, southeast of the Capitol, and those just south of the reunion grounds, known as Camp Alger, were filled by thousands of veterans, and in addition many handsome public school buildings were turned into temporary quarters for as many of the veterans as could find room.

To Lie Side by Side.

The multitude of white tents which covered the available space in the monument grounds, the White lot, were also filled with sleeping comrades. When the sleeping hosts awoke this morning and the comrades had performed their ablutions all was light and life and gladness.

It was a perfect early autumn day and the veterans seemed to have caught its spirit. Early rising was the rule and the camps were like hives of bees humming with activity. Everywhere were the blue coats dressing and brushing up and making ready for the day's programme. Streets were crowded at an early hour and most of the people of the district appeared to have abandoned

The Idea of Business

Rarely in its history has the national capital appeared more resplendent than in the gorgeous costume she has donned in honor of the event. Nearly all of the streets and avenues are elaborately and handsomely decorated, but the display on historic Pennsylvania Avenue, from the Capitol to the Washington Equestrian Statue, at Twenty-Second street, is particularly brilliant, nearly every building along the entire route of the great parade on Tuesday is almost entirely covered with flags and bunting bearing such legends as "Welcome to the Grand Army of the Republic," "Welcome Veterans," "Welcome to the nation's defenders." Public buildings have received special care in their decorations, and those of the White House and Treasury Department are conspicuously elaborate and beautiful. Of more than usual merit from an artistic standpoint, are the reviewing stands that have been erected by the citizens committee for use of the Vice President and Commander-in-Chief.

Feature of the Day was the dedication of Grand Army place, so called, just south of the grounds of the executive mansion. It is one magnificent lawn, comprising many acres of ground covered with green sod and unbroken by a single tree or bush. On this vast field has been laid out a reproduction of the closing campaign of the war of the rebellion, but instead of serried ranks and parks of death dealing artillery, positions of federal armies have been indicated by the arrangement of tents and stands, and in these tents will be reunions of the various corps. A reproduction of the famous frigate Kearsarge has been erected on the place.

The dedication of the Grand Army place was preceded by a parade of considerable proportions, the principle part in it being taken by regular soldiers, sailors and marines stationed in Washington and the District of Columbia National Guard. The procession consisted of five brigades commanded by Gen. Eugene A Carr. The procession was officially reviewed from a stand north of the war department and built for the Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army. Among those on the stand were Vice-President Morton and General Palmer.

The Dedication Attended by a Large Crowd

The dedication of the Grand Army Place by Vice President Morton, as representative of President Harrison, who was detained at Loon Lake, took place in the presence of a large assembly.

Vice President Levi P Morton delivered a formal dedication address. Brief informal speeches were made by Secretaries Noble and Rusk, Attorney General Miller, Acting Secretary of War Grant, Generals Schofield, Kelfer, Green and Fairchild.

Telegram from President Harrison.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 19. Gen. Palmer has received the following telegram from President Harrison:

LOON LAKE, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1892

Commander-in Chief of G. A. R.

I had looked forward with much interest to the great rehearsal in Washington next Tuesday of the victors march of 1865. I would have esteemed it one of the highest honors of my public life to have welcomed to the National Capital and to have received in its historic avenue this representative assembly of the men who not only saved the city from threatened destruction, but made it the worthy political capital of an unbroken union. It would also have been one of the most favored and tender incidents of my private life to have taken these comrades again by the hand, but all this has been denied to me by the intervention of a sad and imperative duty, and I can only ask you to give to all my cordial greetings and good wishes. Accept my sincere thanks for your very kind and sympathetic message.

(Signed), BENJAMIN HARRISON.

PANAMA VIA GALVESTON, Sept 19. A small boat was, yesterday, observed coming from the direction of the quarantined Pacific Mail Liner Newport, in the Bay of Colon. The Quarantine Prefect, with a squad of soldiers, waited the landing of the boat on the beach. On board were Mr Ashby, the American Consul at Colon, and a Mr Vopham. The Prefect asked if they had been on board the Newport, and they answered him they had not been within fifty yards of the ship. Mr Ashby was publicly reprimanded by the Prefect for trying to violate the quarantine, and showing disrespect of authorities. Mr Vopham was put in jail but within a few hours was released. Many laborers in the employ of the Pacific Mail Company, and of the Panama Company, have been laid off, because on account of the quarantine there is no work for them. Foreign shipping is the sole life of Colon and trade is dead now. The condition of the Isthmus is growing serious as the result of the cholera scare, and unless there is a change much misery will result.

NOT THE WASHINGTON OF '65

Grand Army Men Will See New Sights at the Capital

"This is Washington, of course," said a tall veteran in a Grand Army suit, as he looked westward from the steps of the Capitol. "It is Washington, but it isn't the Washington I used to know."

There was a suggestion of disappointment in the old soldier's voice, but as he stood and looked over the wonderful city, with its broad smooth streets, its handsome parks and noble architecture, his mood changed, and he exclaimed in his enthusiasm "It's marvellous, it's grand!"

The Grand Army "boys" cannot find the Washington they knew in the stormy days of the war. Peace and tranquility have fostered its growth, and wealth and prosperity have touched it with a magic wand.

Great has been the development of the nation during the past twenty-seven years; its capital city has more than kept pace with it. To day it stands as an epitome of the advance which the United States has made along all lines of endeavor since the war. In no other city could the veterans find so good an illustration of their country's progress during the stirring epochs in which they have lived.

At this encampment they will look back on it with pride, and if they pleased might say with Ulysses "All of which I saw and part of which I was."

"Why, the work on the exterior of the Capitol dome was not finished when we passed through on our way home from the war," said a Grand Army man in the corridors of the Ebbitt House this afternoon. "That, of course, means that the wonderful fresco in the canopy, and the historic frieze below it, had not come to adorn the interior. The wings of the Capitol were then new and lacked much of the elaborate ornamentation they have now. The national hall of statuary to receive contributions to its present fine collections. The soldiers monument on the west side of the capitol grounds and other notable structures around the capitol building were not then completed.

The old soldier might have gone on to tell scores of even more striking changes. The Washington monument has grown from 180 feet high to a magnificent shaft of 555 feet in height. The National Museum, covering nearly 2½ acres and costing $250,000 has gathered a collection that for interest to an American cannot be equalled in the world.

The Army Medical Museum, completed in 1887 at a cost of $200,000, is situated on one side of the old Smithsonian Institution building, while on the other side is the agricultural department building with its museum and its admirable conservatory 320 feet long.

Both these treasures of medical and agricultural science have been collected since the war, while the park in which the above buildings are located is among post bellum improvements of the city.

Under the shadow of the Washington monument is another new building—the bureau of engraving and printing, where the much sought art of making money can be seen in its perfection. The government botanical garden has been brought to its present perfection since the soldiers were here, and the celebrated Bartholdi fountain erected in the grounds.

The old arsenal grounds, where the Lincoln conspirators were hanged, has been made to smile, and has lost its unsavory reputation while the old armory has been converted into the fish and fisheries building.

The north and south wings of the treasury building, formerly of brick, have been rebuilt in granite and the old war and navy department structures to make way for the present building of the State, War and Navy departments just west of the White House. The building formerly occupied by the State department at Fourteenth and S street, N. W., is now the Children's Hospital. The department of justice also has new quarters in the brownstone building on the corner of Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue opposite the treasury building. The pension office building on Judiciary square, is one of the latter structures. It is here that a big reception will be held. Its dimensions are 400x200 feet. The walls are 75 feet high. It has a frieze 1200 feet long representing an army in campaign. It cost $500,000. A new building for a city postoffice is being erected at Pennsylvania avenue, and a new library building is nearing completion east of the Capitol.

Have Been Torn Down

The soldiers will find the White House unchanged except for the modern improvements and conveniences introduced by President Arthur in 1881, and the removal by President Grant of the statue of Jefferson from the front to the rear of the mansion.

But the Grand Army visitors will find a most striking feature of Washington to be its public park system and the fine shade trees that border its spacious streets. Of the 6,111 acres within the city limits, more than one-half is devoted to public uses. Here is a list of government and district parks and reservations at Washington city: Observatory grounds, 25 acres, Monument grounds, 100 acres, Agricultural grounds, 37 acres, Smithsonian grounds, 60 acres, Armory grounds 15 acres; Public Gardens, 25 acres, Botanical Gardens, 15 acres, Capitol grounds, 50 acres, Garfield Gardens, 30 acres.

Executive Grounds,

70 acres, Indiana square, 15 acres, grounds of institution for deaf and dumb 60 acres, Woodly Park, 20 acres, arsenal grounds, 60 acres, Zoological Garden, 165 acres, Soldiers Home, 640 acres, National cemetery, 1,100 acres, land on Potomac, 700 acres, Lincoln Park, ten acres, Franklin Park, ten acres, Lafayette Park, ten acres, Farragut Park, two acres, Rawlins Park, two acres, Mt. Vernon Park, seven acres, Iowa circle, three acres, Dupont circle, three acres, Thomas circle, three acres, McPherson square, two acres. Total, 3,365 acres.

Most of these parks were not laid out twenty-five years ago, and all have acquired whatever beauty they possess since the veterans guarded the city in 1865. Outside the city limits, but within the District of Columbia, is Zoological park on the one hand and just beyond is Rock Creek park with its 1,500 acres, purchased by Congress in 1890 at a cost of $250,000.

A large number of the statues are of recent erection.

The miles of asphalt pavement, which makes the streets as level as a floor, have all been laid since the war, and every schoolhouse except two. Its private buildings have increased from 150,000 in 1865 to 500,000 in 1892. The population of the district was 100,000 in 1865 and 258,431 in 1892. Its colored population has remained at about one-third of the whole for the past twenty years. In 1870 the whole population was 131,700, colored, 43,404; in 1880, 177,624; colored, 59,-624, in 1890, 230,392, colored, 75,827.

In a word, the veterans left a weak, struggling city in debt, with poor schools, bad streets and no enterprise. They return to find it the handsomest city on the continent, and the rival of the greatest capitals of the world, with evidence of wealth, culture, education and prosperity on every hand.

A Happy Occasion.

Quite a large company of Exeter relatives and friends of Mr. Ira W. Davis and his estimable wife met at their beautiful home in East Corinth village on the morning of Saturday, September 17th and passed the day there most pleasantly.

The ride in the bracing morning air sharpened the appetites of the guests, and, after their hunger had been appeased, [illegible]

There was a narrow escape from a fatal accident by the electrics in Camden, recently. Two men were driving along ahead of the cars with slack rein when the horse heard the car, jumped to the opposite side of the road throwing one of the men out of the carriage directly on to the track and only a few feet in front of the approaching car. Only the presence of mind and wonderful quickness of motor man George Swetland saved the man's life. Mr Swetland at the same time put on the brakes and not only shut off the power but reversed it and thus stopped the car not a moment too soon. The man was under the forward part of the car unhurt, but had the car gone a foot farther he would have been crushed by the wheels.

Penobscot

A question of importance to fund renters has arisen in Dexter in a recent loss by fire on a residence there. The policy was issued upon the dwelling house in the usual way. The house is finely frescoed throughout and the owner as well as the agent who insured it supposed the insurance covered the entire property, the frescoes as well as the other finish. The house was deluged with water to put out a slight fire in the attic, and of course the frescoes were ruined. Now the insurance company points to a clause in its policy exempting it from liability for frescoes unless specially mentioned, and says it won't pay for the damage on that score. There are very many frescoed buildings in Maine under insurance, but probably few of the policy holders ever thought this part of their property was not insured. The Dexter man claims the company liable for whatever was a part of the dwelling house insured, notwithstanding the clause in the policy.

Richmond's hopes are raised by the reports that the shoe factory lately occupied by Caldwell & Libby will soon be started by a new firm, Morgan & Libby, and also that parties from out of the State are trying to purchase the Southard cotton mill which has been idle for several years.

An extensive buyer of hay gives some good advice to hay producers in the Belfast Age. He says the reputation of the Maine product may be heightened by using a less weight of wood on the bales; the bales should be packed with two or four laths only, and not a lot of lumber, and should be of uniform size or stamped with the shipper's brand. Hay consumers are more particular than they used to be.

Washington

The Eastport Sentinel has been roaming around among that town's twenty sardine factories, and if it did not find business very lively it found some curiosities in the way of nomenclature. According to this authority these establishments are known among the workmen under such appellations as the "Pulling Pig," the "Orphan's Home," the "Lunatic Asylum," the "Domino," the "Odds and Ends," the "wigwam," the "Christian Endeavor," "Muckhole," "Brigham Young's Hotel," the "Free and Easy," the "Two Cent Shop," the "Horse and Stable," the "Droppin'," "Sailors Snug Harbor," the "Hole in the Wall," "Castle Garden," "Paddy's Home," the "Seventy," the "Sly One," and "Moonface." His "Slaughterhouse" of former years is now known as "Uncle Tom's Cabin," while the newest factory of all goes by the name of "Sodom's Pride."

The Republican says: Two of Machias worthy young ladies have bid adieu to the town and taken up their residences in other parts of the country. Miss Mary S., youngest daughter of Deacon Gilbert Longfellow, was married to Rev. [illegible] Hastings, last Tuesday evening, at the residence of her father and left town Wednesday morning for St. Louis, Mo., where Mr. Hastings has been for some time settled over one of the Congregational churches of that city. Miss Lizzie Stratton was married the same evening to James E. Golden, and has gone to Waltham, Mass.

W. W. Rumball, of Harrington, has entered his 2-year-old trotting stallion Trusty Boy, Jr., at the Driving Class at Machias, and will give an exhibition one half mile heat at the fair.

The thirty-third annual Fair of the West Washington Agricultural Association will begin at the Cherryfield Park Tuesday, Sept. 27, and continue three days. It is the purpose of the management to have the exhibition interesting in every detail. Liberal premiums are offered to competitors to the various departments, which will undoubtedly meet with the hearty response from the numerous patrons of the Society. The races which form an interesting feature in the exhibitions of this kind have not been overlooked by the management, and arrangements are being made for trotting during each day. Some of the finest blood in the county will compete for the purses, and several entries are already made. The West Washington follows the fairs in Hancock county, and the Society is assured of the attendance of a number of the representative horsemen of that section, including Dr. Nye, of Bluehill, who will be there with his string of favorite trotters. Arrangements are completed for base ball playing, and the opening game will be contested by the Columbia Falls and the Columbia teams.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Give Him the Full Penalty of the Law.

The scoundrel who was arraigned in the Municipal Court yesterday for criminally assaulting a little child should be given the full penalty of the law, which, for that offence, is imprisonment in the State Prison for life. The respondent now stands committed for an examination before the Grand Jury in February, and the authorities should leave no loop-hole through which the scoundrel can escape the punishment he so richly merits. In our opinion the County Attorney should at once take steps to insure the presence of the child when the case comes up at the Criminal Term of Court. The little one belongs to a family of wanderers who go about the country playing and singing in the streets, and unless the authorities place the child under detention no one can tell where she may be when needed in court. In such aggravated cases it is always customary in every court in the country to detain so important a witness, and the authorities ought to take prompt action in this matter before the family get out of the city. Every instinct of humanity, to say nothing of the good name of the city demands that this wretch receive the full penalty of the law

The Fourth is the Banner District.

The Bangor Commercial does not like the official figures of the vote of this district and tries to find some comfort by quoting the returns collected by the Lewiston Journal. The figures published in THE WHIG Monday morning were the official returns made to the Secretary of State's office and covered the entire district with the exception of two small towns, one in Aroostook and the other in Washington county, the returns from which will not materially change the result. The Commercial with its characteristic dishonesty ignores the official returns and copies the figures obtained by the Journal, which do not agree with the official figures of the vote given a single candidate, in order to vent its political spleen, but in reality it only succeeds in showing the people how sore it is over its last thrashing in this district.

These official returns give Mr. Boutelle a plurality of 4,328 over the Democratic candidate, which is larger than the plurality received by any other member of the delegation, and fully confirms our claim that the Fourth District is the banner district in the State. In 1890 Mr. Boutelle's plurality was 4,572, or 244 more than this year. In the Second District in 1890 Mr. Dingley's plurality was 5,312, or 1,611 more than this year. As the Commercial undertakes to show from the Journal's figures that the decrease in Mr. Boutelle's plurality was due to his having voted for Chicago as the place of holding the World's Fair, after it had been demonstrated that New York was out of the race, it will be interesting to note just how it will dispose of the much larger decrease in the Second District. As a matter of fact, however, while Mr. Boutelle's vote in 1890 was 15,716, this year it was 15,526. The skull of the editor of the Commercial is very thick, but it is possible that these figures may in time penetrate his brain sufficiently to convince him that his attempt to defeat Mr. Boutelle on the fair question has not been a howling success.

In addition to the vote for Congressman the Fourth District has elected the entire Republican ticket for officers in each of the four counties, has elected a solid Republican delegation of eight Senators and thirty-two out of forty-three Representatives, including a gain of one Representative in Bangor. We can understand that this result makes the Commercial very unhappy, but it is even more foolish than usual in advertising the fact.

It is the Issue.

Of all the countries of the civilized world, this is now the most prosperous, and its prosperity is extraordinary in its own history, as all the official statistics of commerce, trade, and manufacture bear abundant witness. Any party which undertook to go before the American people, at this period more especially, on the issue of free trade, would be overwhelmingly defeated. Never before in America's history was protection so deeply and thoroughly rooted here as it is now. Free trade England can be more easily converted to protection than this country can be led into free trade.—New York Sun.

But this is the great issue in the campaign this fall. The Democratic platform declares all protection unconstitutional and favors a tariff for revenue only which means free trade pure and simple. The situation is rather a tough one for the Sun, but it cannot place the great question of the contest between the parties in the background. What it says concerning the tariff is the strict truth, but at the same time it constitutes a severe arraignment of the Democratic party which has hoisted the free trade banner this year and has led it to the mast-head.

What it was About.

Like a parrot the Commercial imitates the cry of its Democratic contemporaries and wants to know what the Republicans were celebrating in this city Friday night. Well, for one thing they were celebrating the grand victory in the whole State on the day of the election, a victory so complete that the only thing left for the Democrats to congratulate themselves over is the fact that they succeeded in getting out this year some of the Democrats that staid at home in 1890. Locally they were celebrating the rousing victory in Bangor, which was the banner city in the State, as the Fourth District was the banner district, a victory that gave the Republican ticket an increased plurality of 208 and wiped out the Democratic Representative who was elected two years ago and who fully expected to be ...

Bourbons of Alabama must now do battle for their lives.

The convention was the most significant political gathering that has assembled in the Southern States for many years. It was composed almost exclusively of white men, and nine-tenths of them had always hitherto supported the Democratic ticket. The chief plank of their platform demands "a free vote and a fair count," and they take a sharp issue with the Bourbons on another point—they declare that the tariff should not be reduced beyond the requirements of protection to American industry. Verily the spirit of reform and progress is abroad in a State which has been one of the most benighted of the entire South. While the Northern Democrats, in desperate dread of the tariff, are hotly endeavoring to divert attention from it by shouting, "Force bill! Force bill!" these white voters of Alabama are declaring that they are ready for any measure which will give them honest elections.

"There will be an election in November," said the Chairman of the convention, "and we will have a full Congressional and Electoral ticket in the field against that of the organized Democracy. How many of you will be willing to serve as United States Supervisors and Deputy Marshals to see that it is not counted out?" Wildly cheering, the whole 800 delegates rose as one man. Addressing a group of Democratic politicians in the gallery the Chairman impressively continued:

"Take warning by what you have seen. Heretofore you have had to deal with poor, half blind negroes at the polls on election day. These are white men, like yourselves. From now, henceforth and forever the free white men of Alabama mean to throw off the shackles of ballot box stuffers and election thieves. Let them try the old game in November and they will be indicted under the laws of the United States, and native white Southern citizens of Alabama will go into the jury boxes and convict them."

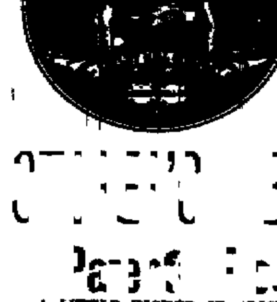

These men are intelligent; they are determined. They cannot be intimidated. If they are shot they will shoot back. The "force bill" scarecrow has no terrors for them. They scoff at "negro domination." They are themselves the victims of Bourbon fraud and thievery. To right their wrongs they would gladly welcome a hundred force bills, and they propose to use all the available machinery of the Federal Government.

How are the Alabama Bourbons going to meet this crisis? And how are the Bourbons of the country going to meet it? As sure as fate, it foreshadows the complete extinction of the issue upon which they have depended to float their party through the campaign.

"Loved Ones Provided For."

One of the benefits of life insurance is the satisfaction of mind which comes from the consciousness that our LOVED ONES ARE PROVIDED FOR. It makes it easier to die to know that one's family will not be thrown upon the doubtful charity of the world.

A life insurance policy gives you the benefit of a large sum of money before you have earned it. Perhaps you argue, "But you run a great risk." No, I would run a greater risk the other way. You say "The insurance companies might fail." So might the bank. You must trust something to others.—Rev. A. S. Gumbort.

STEAMER DISABLED.

Floated About Some Time Without Assistance Coming

BOOTHBAY HARBOR, Sept. 19. The steamer Carroll broke her after shaft pin Thursday at midnight with Cassias ledge then north ten miles and the wind southeast and light. She set her sails and signal of distress and headed north. Friday morning at 8 o'clock she spoke the schooner Bonus of Lunenburg, which promised to report the steamer. She sighted several vessels but none answered the signals. Saturday night several fishing schooners came alongside and on Sunday at 3 A. M. a steamer passed at 3 miles distance, taking no notice of the torches. At 9 A. M., no ship assistance being at hand and being short of provisions, the wind being fair, the McKenzie took her in tow for Boothbay arriving without incident at 10 P. M. The passengers are all well and will remain on board.

Government Gives Permission for Use of House Island in Portland Harbor

PORTLAND, Sept 19. Doctors Meserve and Merrill of the Portland Board of Health returned to-day from Washington where they have been to obtain permission from the general Government for the use of House Island and Fort Scammel Ferion as a cholera disinfecting station. They went through a long series of applications in Washington. Their petition was refused by the bureau but the matter was laid before Secretary Elkins and President Harrison. The result is that to-night a despatch was received stating that Secretary Elkins has directed that the necessary permission be given.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19. The passengers of the steamers Rugia and LaBretagne left quarantine this evening.

Quarantine Abroad Against Vessels from the United States.

WASHINGTON, Sept 19. The State Department is advised by our minister at Nicaragua that the ports of Costa Rica have been closed until further orders on account of the cholera in New York.

Mr. Thomas, the United States minister to Norway and Sweden cables as follows: "Vessels arriving in Sweden from the United States Atlantic ports are subject to two days quarantine."

The Treasury Department is informed that the authorities at Panama issued a decree declaring a quarantine against all vessels from the United States.

Quarantine at Windward Island Ports

NEW YORK, Sept. 19. Private advices received to-day state that with a few exceptions all the British Windward Island ports have ordered a quarantine of twenty-one days against all vessels from the United States.

Cholera Broken Out at Camp Low.

CAMP LOW, N. J., Sept 20, 12 15 A. M. Asiatic cholera has broken out here. Francesco Moreno died of the disease in a tent where he had been isolated at 10 P. M. A widow, name unknown, accompanied by four small children was taken ill with every symptom of the disease shortly after 11 P. M. and the family was removed to an isolated tent.

The man's death is said to be largely due to excesses in which he indulged Monday night. Great excitement prevails among the officials of the camp and fears are entertained of a stampede of the people.

The dead man and infected family were passengers on the Normannia and had been in quarantine for eighteen days past.

Three New Cases.

QUARANTINE, S. I., Sept. 19. Two more deaths from cholera on board the Scandia are reported and one new case on the Bohemia.

UPRISING OF NEGROES

Dissatisfaction With New Election Law—Fatal Affrays Occur.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 19. It is stated that there is a general uprising of negroes in Campagnolles township, in Calhoun county. The negroes were dissatisfied with the new election law and threatened to annihilate every white man, woman and child in the township. Capt. James, an old and respected citizen, went to the meeting of the blacks on Saturday evening and tried to pacify them. A general fight ensued. Capt. James was shot in the leg and four negroes were killed and several more wounded. More trouble is looked for.

WILL LEAVE LOON LAKE.

Mrs. Harrison and Party to Start for Washington To-Day.

LOON LAKE, N. Y., Sept. 19. It was announced this morning that the President and family had definitely determined upon the removal of Mrs. Harrison to Washington to-morrow, for the reason that she derived no actual benefit from the sojourn in the mountains and because of their belief that the lingering disease from which she is suffering, can be treated just as well, if not better, in Washington.

Dr Gardner made the following statement in regard to the case to the reporters.

"Mrs. Harrison is to be removed to Washington to-morrow. She is constantly expressing a strong desire to go there. The President and other members of the family are anxious to have her taken to Washington, provided it can be done with any degree of safety. Dr. Trudeau, of Saranac, is here and we had a consultation as to the case. We found Mrs. Harrison with no reproduction of the fluid in the chest cavity to any extent. In view of the fact that the President and family wish her removal to Washington, it was decided to move her now instead of later, because in two or three days her condition might not permit her removal. The fluid in the pleura is liable to be reproduced at any time and, of course, such appearance diminishes her chances of recovery.

Very Much Improved

"As the opportunity for her removal seems more favorable now than it may be later, the President and family have taken the responsibility of the undertaking. Mrs Harrison passed a very comfortable night and is feeling much stronger this morning."

The Presidential party, including Mrs. Harrison, will leave here at noon to-morrow, and are expected to reach Washington by Wednesday morning.

One of the principal difficulties of the trip will be the removal of the invalid from the cottage where she now lies to the railroad station at Loon Lake, a distance of three miles over a rough mountain road. The transfer will be made in a long covered wagon especially adapted to the road and so arranged as to receive the cot on which Mrs. Harrison will be carried from the cottage. There are considerable misgivings as to the result of the removal, but nearly everybody concerned in Mrs. Harrison's welfare considers that it is the only thing to be done under the circumstances.

THE IRON HALL

State Convention of the Members in Manchester.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 19. The State convention of the Iron Hall was held to-day to elect delegates to the Baltimore convention, Sept. 22d, to reorganize the order. About one hundred were present, mostly delegates. J. Albert Clark, of Exeter, presided. A number were present from Maine and Vermont. Judge Thomas Leavitt, of Exeter, was chosen delegate to the Boston convention. Twenty-three delegates from twenty-three branches were present and three were unrepresented. Somerby was invited, but did not come. A circular defending him was read.

Massachusetts Members Also Choose Delegates.

BOSTON, Sept. 19. The Iron Hall of Massachusetts to-day chose three delegates to the Baltimore re-organizing convention. Resolutions were adopted instructing the delegates to confer for the order "Under such officers as shall be for the best interests of all concerned to the end that harmony may be preserved." The general sentiment of the convention favored re-organization on representative basis with state organizations and that the right be accorded women to ola local branches or have separate branches owing allegiance to the supreme body.

The Veterans Witnessed Sights They Will Long Remember.

Brilliant Spectacles and Events in Washington Monday.

Several Places Want Honor of Entertaining Veterans Next.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19. The fight for the honor of entertaining the G. A. R. a year hence, and for the honor of being its commander-in-chief, from now until the next annual encampment, has already become quite lively. Indianapolis and Lincoln, Neb., are after the next encampment. Gen. Benjamin F. Butler is a conspicuous and interested spectator of the crowded streets.

All day long trains came rolling in bearing thousands of Grand Army men and other visitors. To-night Commander-in-chief Palmer was presented by his aides with a beatiful Grand Army badge said to have cost $1,000. Camp fires and reunions were the order to-night.

The electric illumination of the city to-night in honor of the veterans is on a scale never before attempted in Washington. The principal event this evening was the reception in the rotunda of the Capitol, attended by thousands.

The ladies who assisted in receiving included the wives of members of the cabinet, Mrs. Logan, Mrs. Florence E. Baker, of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Sarah E. Fuller, of Massachusetts. Among those present were Vice President Morton, Secretary Tracy, ex-President Hayes and Gen. Alger.

A large audience listened this evening to addresses and anthems in honor of the memory of Gen. Philip R. Sheridan.

Five police officers were badly burned to-day by powder from a cannon used in firing a salute in Grand Army place. Four others were also hurt.

Ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes arrived here Saturday for the purpose of attending the Grand Army reunion. He attended the services at the Foundry M. E. church yesterday and hundreds of people there shook hands with him.

The question of who will be the next commander-in-chief of the Grand Army is of absorbing interest to Grand Army men here. Three candidates are in the field, viz. Col. Charles P. Lincoln, of Washington; Col. A. G. Weisert, of Wisconsin, and Gen. S. H. Hearst, of Ohio. Each has a war record of exceptional brilliancy and has a strong personal following.

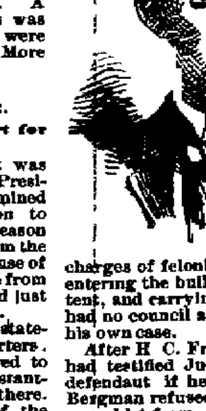

BERGMAN FOUND GUILTY.

Would-be Assassin of Mr. Frick Given Deserved Sentence.

Fifteenth Regiment Leaves Homestead on Monday.

Strikers Claim that 200 Workmen Left out of Fear.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept 19. Alexander Bergman, the anarchist who tried to kill H. C. Frick, was placed on trial this morning in the criminal court, Judge McClung presiding. He pleaded not guilty to the charges of felonious assault and battery, entering the building with felonious intent, and carrying concealed weapons. He had no council and preferred to conduct his own case.

After H. C. Frick and other witnesses had testified Judge McClung asked the defendant if he had anything to say. Bergman refused to be sworn. He had a pamphlet from which he started to read when the court said: "You need only give facts."

Bergman—I claim the right to make a ful defense, as I have no attorney and no witnesses. I know an example will be made of me for my act and little concern will be had of it, as the murder of John Brown and the murder of five men on the Chicago gallows in 1888. The injustice of the ruling classes is to blame for this. They oppress the workingmen. I belong to those who were murdered at Chicago. That crime made me think and brood."

He read about an hour when Judge McClung said: "You must finish by one o'clock." "Well," said Bergman, "I can have all the time I want for my defence and will take all the time I need."

"We will teach you different if you think you can dictate to us," said Judge McClung. At the conclusion of the trial the jury brought in a verdict of guilty and Bergman was sentenced to twenty-one years in the penitentiary and one year in the workhouse.

Soldiers Leave Homestead.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., Sept. 19. The fifteenth regiment which has been on duty 71 days, broke camp this morning and started for home. This leaves but one regiment, the 16th, now on duty. The strikers claim that over two hundred men left the mill when they heard the fifteenth had been ordered home.

DOUBLE SCULL RACE.

Hanlan and O'Connor to Race Gaudaur and Hosmer

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 19. Articles of agreement were signed this evening for a double scull race between Hanlan and O'Connor and Gaudaur and Hosmer. The race is to be for $1,000 a side, to be rowed in four weeks from to-day at Toronto or Hamilton.

FOUND AT LAST.

She is, She is, His Long-lost, Long-lost Sister.

A Fall River, Mass., despatch says: The publicity given the details of the Borden case, and the widespread mention of the official connected with it, have resulted in a rather pleasant discovery for City Marshal Hilliard. It has found for him a long-lost sister.

A sister Clara had been married a year before he came East, in 1878, and had gone to Missouri. All trace of the sister was lost until the other day, when a letter came to the chief. He opened it, and, as he began to read, he first thought it was penned by a crank.

But when he had finished it he got up and yelled. The writer was Mrs. Clara Jackson, of Kansas City, Mo. She wrote that she had seen the name Rufus B. Hilliard in the papers in connection with the details of the murder. She had a brother Rufus once, she added, and then proceeded to give the names of the members of the family and the place of residence at the time she went to Missouri. Was the Fall River police chief her long lost brother?

The chief has answered that he is, and has written to two other married sisters in Lowell and Lawrence that Mrs. Jackson has at last been found. Mrs. Jackson will probably come east and there will be a joyous reunion of the three sisters and a brother.

Hill's First Word in the Present Campaign.

Evidently Not Enthusiastic Over Candidates or Party.

He Does Not Forget to Score the Mugwumps.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Sept. 19. Senator David B. Hill delivered his first political speech during the present campaign at the Academy of Music here to-night. 5,000 persons were present fully an hour before the meeting opened and every seat was filled and every bit of available standing room was occupied.

The theatre was handsomely decorated. Four hundred prominent Democrats of Brooklyn and New York City occupied seats on the stage. Senator Hill was greeted with loud cheers. Congressman Wm. J. Coombs presided and introduced Senator Hill, who was again enthusiastically applauded. Senator Hill declared he was a Democrat before the Chicago convention and is a Democrat still. He said the wisdom of the National Democratic convention was not now to be questioned that its decision with loyal acquiescence by every true and patriotic Democrat, and that everything should be put aside for the good of the party. He continued. The party platform, in all its essential particulars, must be deemed the infallible party guide, and the party's candidates are our candidates and are entitled to our fealty. There is no place in honorable American politics for the political guerillas who do not attach themselves to either of the great political armies, but who while swearing allegiance to neither, criticise both and fight first upon one side and then upon the other.

Will be Accepted

The Senator then proceeded to describe the present attitude and purpose of the two political parties upon the questions of the day. He spoke of the Democratic party as the party who recently gave to the country four years of creditable, economical and honorable administration of the government, and claimed that upon the great vital issues of the hour the Democracy hold the advantage ground and more correctly represent the principles and politics best calculated to subserve the highest interests of the Whole Country

He said if he were asked to define the one fundamental difference between the two parties, he should state that one believes in a strict construction of the federal constitution, the other in a loose one.

He declared that a correct theory of the government excludes the idea that one citizen may be burdened to foster another citizen's private schemes and stated that was the Democratic National platform's position upon the tariff question, adding that he did not regard this position as leaning towards free trade.

He affirmed that there was not an elementary law writer anywhere, whose treatise on the constitution is regarded as standard authority, who ventures to affirm the constitutional right of Congress to levy duties for other direct purpose than revenue for the support of the Government; that Republican protection does not constitutionally exist, but is imposed upon the people by fraud, false pretense, evasion and gross abuse of taxing power, that if the Government, under the pretense of can impose prohibitory duties and thereby protect domestic industries from competition, under the same pretence it can by taxation essentially usurp most of the functions of the state governments, virtually regulate marriage and divorce, rate of interest on money, purchases of property, formation of corporations and making of leases and contracts of every description.

He declared that the Mills bill of 1888 and the separate tariff bills passed by the present House indicate in a general way the Democratic position, that if he believed the Democratic party favored absolute free trade he would not advocate its cause. He stated that there was no satisfactory evidence that the McKinley bill had increased our prosperity in any degree or advanced the wages of a single workingman, that the country had been prosperous in spite of the

McKinley Bill

The Senator denounced the "force" bill and said the Democratic party desires free, honest and fair elections everywhere, because they are essential to the preservation of our free institutions. Mr. Hill discussed the state of affairs and said in conclusion: With this motto inscribed upon our banner, "public office is a public trust," supplemented by the other sentiments, "No public taxation for private purposes," and "no force bills," let us close up our ranks and buckle on our armor for the fight, with the determination to do all in our power for the triumph of our party and the election of our honored standard bearers, Cleveland and Stevenson.

The Temptation Which Lay in His Path.

BOSTON, Sept. 19. Julian Brosseau, alias Giguire, fifty years old, a customs officer at Montreal, was arrested here this morning charged with embezzling $1,700 of Her Majesty's custom receipts. Brosseau has been a collector at Montreal for twenty years and the aggregate of his theft is said to be $5,000. He had not led a fast life and it is not known how he spent the money. He has no money now. He acknowledges having stolen "perhaps $600."

LIZZIE BORDEN CRIED.

Though Never in Public—A New Story Evolved.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 19. A story which was published in to-night's local papers, has given cause for much satisfaction among the friends of Miss Lizzie A. Borden. It was shown that her father had been looking for some time for a new house for his daughters and also that she was not greatly stinted in money. Instead of being the impassive woman as represented by District Attorney Knowlton, it is said that she has several times given way to tears, though never in public.

NELSON THE CAUSE OF A ROW.

National Trotting Association Representatives Give Warning that He shall Not Trot at Springfield.

A Springfield Mass., despatch says: A three-cornered row is in progress between the National Trotting Association's local representative, the managers of the Hampden Agricultural Society, and C. H. Nelson, owner of the stallion named after him.

The Agricultural Society holds its 48th annual fair on Hampden Park on Thursday and Friday of this week, and Nelson has been extensively advertised as an attraction, as he was to attempt the lowering of the world's stallion trotting record.

Although it was well known that Nelson was blacklisted by the national association, it was not thought that any objection would be made to his pearing until Saturday, when William Elliot, who has the management of the horse department of the fair, received the following letter from L. A. Powers, secretary of the national association, and also chairman of the board of directors of the Hampden Park Association:

"The directors of Hampden Park have decided not to allow Nelson or the horse Nelson to exhibit on Hampden Park as advertised by you and you will please take this as an official notice and act accordingly.

Nelson and his horse have been expelled by all tracks in this country who have trotted under the rules of the National Trotting Association, and as Hampden Park has been recognized as an association track, the directors feel it is our duty to sustain the action of the National association and to support their decision in the interest of their honest endeavors to sustain [illegible]

Two hundred and fifty railroad conductors and engineers, among whom were a number from this city and vicinity, had a very pleasant excursion to Long Island, Casco Bay, Sunday. They went by special train to Portland and there took a steamer for Long Island. The day was very pleasantly passed and the excursionists returned in the evening much pleased with the outing.

An autumn excursion to Moosehead Lake under the auspices of the Masons of Dexter is booked for next Saturday. This annual excursion to the lake and Kineo always proves an attraction to people in that town, and the route laid out this year is a novel one. Excursions will leave Waterville at 6 A. M. and go to Brownville Junction and thence to Greenville over the Canadian Pacific Ry. Two hours will be spent at Kineo.

The new postal card will soon be for sale at the larger post offices in the United States. This card is a folding one, one side of which is used by the writer of the original message and folded over. On the other half the receiver writes his reply and remails the card. There are to be two denominations—one cent for domestic use and two cents for international correspondence. Contract has just been made for the manufacture of one million of these cards, the first order being for twelve millions.

As Michael Quinn's wood cart was standing in front of the tea store on Kenduskeag bridge yesterday afternoon the horse became frightened and ran down the sidewalk and partly across the bridge. The big wagon struck the carriage of Mr. Abner Perkins, of Orono, and took a wheel off. In front of the post-office the wagon struck the electric light pole, smashing the U. S. mail box and overturning the wagon, which was somewhat damaged. The horse freed himself but was stopped at once. A new mail box was put up at once.

A Boston man who has been in this city recently and seen the Republican torchlight processions remarked to a WHIG reporter yesterday upon the fine turnout from the Grand Central stables provided for the speakers. BACK FROM AROOSTOOK.

B. & A. Officials Take a Carriage Ride Over the Line.

Vice President C. F. Bragg and Director Edward Stetson, of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad, and I. H. Merrill, Esq., have returned from a several days' trip along the line of the B. & A. road and they are much pleased at the way in which matters are progressing and at the appearance of the fine country through which they passed.

They went as far as Mattawamkeag by rail and then took a carriage for a ride of 175 miles. They went to Caribou and Presque Isle, visited other places on the way and then rode to Houlton where they took the cars for the return home.

They were very favorably impressed with the appearance of the long extent of territory through which the B. & A. line will pass. Beyond Molunkus the farming land is continuous and of the finest possible kind, showing not only present profit in working, but great possibilities in the future. Aroostook is truly named the "Garden of Maine."

The woodland and undeveloped regions are of a most promising character and offer great chances for future industries. The thrifty towns are growing more and more prosperous and the B. & A. railroad cannot fail to greatly add to their rapid development. That the road will be a paying investment is very evident to those who are acquainted with Aroostook county.

The work of grading the line is going on rapidly at both ends and in accordance with the best results. The line between Houlton and Presque Isle has been marked out with flyers. Everywhere the contractors are busy with their work and the crews are endeavoring to do as much grading as possible before cold weather sets in.

The work of grading the line will occupy their attention until next spring when the laying of the rails will begin at the earliest opportunity. The event will be an important one and it will be received with general rejoicing as marking another era in the progress of the construction of the line.

AMUSEMENTS

"Shadows of a Great City" at the Opera House

The favorite melo-drama, "Shadows of a Great City," made its seventh visit to this city last night at the Opera House and seemed to take as well with the audience as in its first seasons. The parts are well taken and the scenery is kept up to the previous standard, making a series of realistic scenes. The company opened its season here, and starts out with the prospect of another year of success in the melo-dramatic field. The audience was a very large one and it enthused to a very considerable extent upon the numerous dramatic climaxes with which the play abounds.

Mr Tilton makes a very satisfactory "Tom Cooper," and Miss Tilton made a pleasing impression in the double role of "Annie Standish" and "Helen Standish." Miss Barkerhs an able successor to Miss Annie Ward Tiffany, and created much merriment by her interpretation of the role of "Biddy Ronan." Mr Lee's "Jim Farren" was funny. The other roles were in good hands.

Gloriana

To-morrow evening Charles Frohman's New York company will present the comedy success "Gloriana," at the Opera House. It is a farce comedy written by Edward Mortimer and had a run of 150 nights in New York. The fun of "Gloriana" is said to be continuous and incessant and full of delightful bits of character acting. The company producing it is said to have made a pronounced hit.

Mr George W. Barnum is the leading man and he has a wide spread reputation for excellence. As "Count Evitoff" he has had marked success. The remainder of the company is made up of excellent people and includes J. Herbert Leonard, Charles Drake, John Allen, G. C. Phillips, Jacques Martin, Otis Harlan, Misses F. C. Starkey, Helen Holland, Tillie Barnum and others.

Spider and Fly

M. B. Leavitt's new spectacular production "Spider and Fly," will be presented at the Opera House next Saturday afternoon and evening with many novelties and many excellent performers who were mostly recruited abroad, embracing a number of prominent European pantomimists, comedians, vocalists, dancers and burlesque artists. Some marvelous novelties are promised. Yagourina the famous swordsman, is the latest card secured. The gavotte and tarantelle dancers, ten in number, from the Drury Lane Theatre, are also among the attractions. The costumes, scenery and stage effects are said to be very fine.

We deeply regret the removal of Bro Busfield and his family from our midst, and assure them of our hearty good wishes and sincere progress for their happiness and prosperity in their new home and field of labor.

Friday morning the business will be concluded.

In this construction, the Fire Pot is made in two parts the upper part being hollow, thus forming a Water Way. The water enters at one side, passes all round the fire pot, becoming highly heated in its progress, then passes to the Radiators and is again returned to the fire pot, where it is still further heated

With this combination, rooms at any distance can be thoroughly warmed with Hot Water, and the living rooms warmed with Fresh Warm Air, as the supply of Cold air is from out of doors. By this combination we claim to warm a house thoroughly, giving a purer and more healthy air than when warmed by steam or hot water alone. With the ETNA there is no dust or gas, and with the Lever Working Draw Centre Grate, for ease of management, it has no superior in the market. Our low prices defy competition.

"MAINE JERSEY."

Wound up—the man or woman who's "rundown." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery sets the wheels going. It starts the torpid liver into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses, repairs, and strengthens the system, and restores health and vigor. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition, and builds up flesh and strength.

For all scrofulous humors and blood-taints, and even Consumption (or Lung-scrofula), if taken in time, it's a positive remedy.

Unlike the sarsaparillas, which claim to be good for the blood in March, April, and May, "Golden Medical Discovery" works equally well at all seasons.

Unlike other blood-purifiers, too, it's guaranteed to benefit or cure, in every case, or your money is returned.

On these terms, it's the cheapest. You pay only for the good you get. But it's the best—or it couldn't be sold so.

The only damage reported was the breaking of the shafts of the vehicle.

CONTEMPTIBLE THIEVING. Residents in the vicinity of Maple street are very indignant over the depredations of some unknown man in their gardens. Several of the excellent gardens there have been entered during the nights recently and large quantities of the most highly prized of their products appropriated and carried away by the marauder. Fruit trees have been completely stripped and vegetables of various kinds have been taken. This class of stealing is of a very contemptible nature and is most exasperating to the victims. There is nothing that will raise the ire of a person more than, after carefully cultivating a garden all summer, to go out some morning and find that a thief has robbed him of the delicacies that he had promised himself, even although their pecuniary value might be comparatively small. In these cases the losses have been quite large, and should the offender be caught it would go hard with him. He has been seen on at least two occasions, it is reported, once while engaged in his mean work, but in neither case was any attempt made to capture him, according to reports.

A DAILY STAGE.

The Difference of Seventy Years in Travel Near London.

In 1820 it was considered a great thing to have a stage coach running between London and Aylesbury, going and returning the same day, says a London correspondent. That solitary public conveyance, driven, it is more than likely, upon many occasions by old Sir Henry Peyton, as he made his way from the metropolis to his country home at Sw ft's house, near Bicester, is now replaced by 27 daily trains, which run to the little Buckinghamshire town. Even so late as 1860, when Mr. Murray's "Handbook of Bucks, Berk and Oxfordshire" was published, it was recorded, not without pride, in that useful little work, that "Aylesbury is connected with London by four trains daily, which accomplish the journey in [illegible]

[illegible] to Move a New "Great Equatorial" to Excel all Others.

Professor David P. Todd, the astronomer of Amherst, and director of the observatory connected with that college, is much interested, along with other men of science, in the final completion of the new Naval Observatory at Washington, and its use by the naval astronomers. A reporter asked him at a Long Branch hotel what he thought of the suggestion made in certain naval quarters that Congress should be asked to provide for an equatorial instrument, which should exceed all others in power, for the use of the new institution. He replied readily:

"The Washington refractor is quite up to the mark, as the Government telescopes of the world go. It has a glass twenty-six inches in diameter, and is now being remounted with all the recent inventions in the shape of mechanical accessories. The largest Government telescope is owned by Russia, the objective of which is thirty inches in diameter, made by our own Clark, and mounted by Repsold, of Hamburg, the most celebrated instrument maker in the world—of mechanical parts of telescopes and mean; he does not, I believe, make glasses. Austria has a 27-inch refractor at Vienna, England is now getting a 28-inch at Greenwich, and there is one of about this size at Paris.

"Regarding the purchase of a bigger telescope for the Government astronomers, I think there is not at the Naval Observatory a man who wish to have a larger one. In fact, for the kind of work that Government observatories are expected to do, the 26-inch is fully large enough. It is mostly routine work, and the atmosphere at Washington is rarely steady enough to permit the use of the full power of such a telescope—I mean of magnifying powers of 1,500 to 1,800. For instance, on Mars, during the present month, I doubt if they have been able to use powers exceeding 400 to 600.

"Of course," the Professor continued, "the Lick telescope is a larger glass; it is thirty-six inches in diameter, and collects nearly twice as much light as the Naval Observatory glass; but its great advantage is not so much in size as in the steady atmosphere, where it can do its work. There is very little boiling or flickering of a star's image, as seen on Mount Hamilton, and of course the air is somewhat more transparent, because of the elevation of the mountain—4,300 feet—and it is almost cloudless there for about seven months of the year.

"The grand thing to do to help astronomy by way of a big telescope is not to put it in the possession of Government astronomers, who rarely have the interest, not to say enthusiasm, necessary to its most efficient use, but to give the telescope to some collegiate institute in need of it, and where the astronomers would keep it at work. It should be set up on a high mountain in a dry climate, and means provided for maintaining an astronomer there. Harvard has been the first to branch out in this direction. It has a 13-inch instrument 8,060 feet high in Peru, and its work on Mars, this opposition, may, perhaps, prove equal to that done with all the other telescopes of the world, except the Lick. Of course, with a 30-inch on the same mountain, or even higher, it would have been possible to vastly more.

"But somebody will have to put up the money for the 'great big' telescope very soon, or there may be no one to make it. The senior Clark is dead, his elder son is dead, and the younger is fifty-five to sixty years old. If he could get the necessary glass discs he would take a contract to make a four-foot or five-foot telescope in two or three years, probably for $125,000 to $160,000. Of course we have good opticians left if he dies, but they have not yet had a chance to prove their success in building a big telescope, as he has."

Professor Todd has been taking for several years past special interest in celestial photography. In the late Government expedition to the West coast of Africa, which was under his charge, he had an arrangement of his own invention, which enabled him to work about thirty cameras simultaneously and automatically from a central point of operation. It was never before attempted. He will not have it patented, but, as in the case of his ball mountings for great telescopes, which are in use in the mountings of the Lick instrument, and of a number of others, he will dedicate the invention to the public and to science. The Professor thinks the sensitive plate will yet perform a great service to the science of the celestial bodies.

A NEW YACHT MODEL.

The Changing of the Lines Does Not Lessen the Speed.

It is not generally understood that a model yacht or miniature has any or much practical value. The supposition is that very little can really be proven by them. That the individual element enters largely into the speed obtained from a vessel is true and that the miniature is compelled to a considerable extent, to manage herself is also true, but the performances of the miniature are only so much more at a disadvantage and if she carries sail well and keeps a true course it amply evidences that she is properly hung and that her model contains the elements of stability. The large yacht, built on exactly the same proportions, will produce precisely the same results, plus the individual advantages. In other words, the model like the play, "is the thing," and a large vessel built after the miniature will only exceed it in good points, and never fall below its merits. Therefore, if the model be good the vessel will infallibly be better.

One of the strongest illustrations of this fact was obtained by that well-known designer, A. Cary Smith. He had built the seventy-foot Katrina for the Auchincloss Brothers, and she carried a lee helm, so much so that both Titania and Shamrock defeated her in the summer of 1889. The fault and the remedy were both known, but the extent to which the alterations should be carried was a matter, apparently, of very expensive experiment.

A miniature fac-simile was built and carried the same lee helm. Gradually the fault was corrected in the miniature, and then the same alterations were made to the vessel herself, on precisely the same proportions. In the New York Yacht Club regattas of 1890 and 1891, she easily defeated the Shamrock, and in a strong wind and head sea in 1891 she beat her full nineteen minutes. Mr. Smith will verify these statements, and those who longer doubt the practical advantages of properly proportioned models simply cannot learn from others experience.

Franklyn Bassford, the marine artist and all-round racing yachtsman, is something of a veteran. When he began yachting early in the '70's, all our yachts were cruisers as well as racers. That a class of racers have come to the front which can not be cruisers and afford any comforts has been to him, like many others, a matter of great regret.

A popular fallacy is that a yacht containing the elements of comfortable cruising cannot be built too successfully compete with the modern racing machines, in which everything is sacrificed to speed. It is a delusion. A yacht can be built in any class, large or small which will not only be a safe and comfortable cruiser, but beyond that can at any time that she is clean defeat any racer now known.

The English designers produced a deep boat for safety and narrowed her for speed. They were taught by Edward Burgess in 1885 that the safety and depth could be retained and substantial accommodation also afforded by adding beam, which in good form would not only not detract from speed, but actually increase it.

The English have not forgotten the object lesson. Why should we? The Genesta was 15 feet wide, and English designers were sure that with any reasonable depth I [illegible] be no more beam could be added. The Puritan was 23 feet and 7 inches beam—nearly 55 per cent. in excess of her absolute [illegible] [illegible] less resistance in skin friction, naturally, and a very little addition to rig easily overcomes the inertia of added weights. Less wetted surface means great refinement of lines of course, but when these lines are carried to their ends the increased overhangs fore and aft provide ample buoyancy to prevent pitching. Indeed her steadiness is one of her very best features and her stability leaves little to be desired.

With such a vessel a gentleman can live on the sea, entertain his friends in all weathers, and when speed is sought not seek in vain.

O'DONNELL LODGED IN JAIL

The Homestead Labor Leader in Trouble Again.

Hugh O'Donnell, the Homestead labor leader, was arrested at Pittsburg, Saturday. He was sent to jail charged for the second time with murder in connection with the Homestead riots.

John F. Cox, attorney for O'Donnell, promised to surrender his client to Magistrate McMasters at 1 o'clock Saturday. When the accused did not appear at the time specified Deputy Sheriff Miller and Officer Pat Farrell started out to hunt him. The officers met him at Fifth and Grant. Farrell approached and placed O'Donnell under arrest.

"You are the first man that ever laid hands on me," O'Donnell said, looking sharply at the officer.

"I will not be the last one," Farrell replied. "You promised to appear before the alderman at 1 o'clock. I've a notion to put the nippers on you." However, the nippers were not used.

O'Donnell was taken before the alderman, who committed him to jail. The prisoner was taken into court, but the judge refused to hear his application for bail, and the hearing was delayed until Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Attorney Cox agreed without protest to the delay in the hearing. He was content in the belief that his client would be allowed his freedom until the hearing was held.

After the time for the hearing had been fixed, the court ordered that O'Donnell be taken to jail. O'Donnell and Cox were both surprised at the ruling. The prisoner went to jail without protest.

Hugh Ross, who was to have been given up at the same time, failed to appear. The officers are looking for him.
